

Wednesday 27th January 2021

The crystal blue river meanders slowly under the amazing building. The sun is shining down casting shadows on the shimmering water. The building, as tall as a giraffe, is the home to the Queen. The green trees sway in the silent wind. People are walking under the bridge and are chatting away with each other about the beautiful clear blue sky. There is the smell of roasted chestnuts filling the air making them feel hungry.