

What is electricity?

Have you ever considered how many objects in your home are powered by electricity. Without electricity, our day to day lives would look very different. There would be no television, refrigerators, washing machines or iPads. It is such an important and useful resource, but have you ever stopped to wonder what electricity actually is? Electricity is when a current of charged particles is used to create power. The charged particles flow in a loop called a circuit.